

The Rikky & Morris Levine House, 1964

2257 Betty Lane, Beverly Hills, CA 90210

If there ever has been the perfect summer lease offering the opportunity to experience the joys of L.A.'s celebrated mid-century modernist lifestyle it's here at the Levine House. Sculptor Morris Levine designed the residence for himself incorporating his sculpture into a brilliant open plan program. The house stands witness to the fact that the inspiration for art and architecture are drawn from the same well. Living spaces are elevated over the carport to span a ravine that shelters the pool and garden. Collector furnishings surpass the luxury of any run of the mill five star hotel, and add to the enjoyment of a uniquely Californian living statement.
